

Bio

Born in France, I’m a 33 year-old design director who has always been passionate about design and new technologies. Both formally educated and self-taught, it is a combination of ambition, dynamism and demand that has truly brought me to where I am today.

A firm believer that digital technology improves our lives, my goal is to create both clear interfaces and great experiences for users. Always up-to-date with developments in the field, every new advance poses a challenge. Design is a perpetual state of rethinking.
